History of Ben Harrison Camp No. 356, Indianapolis, IN Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War- Department of Indiana

The Ben Harrison camp has been in existence, on and off, for over 120 years, making it the oldest active camp in the Department of Indiana. The camp history, as detailed below, is all that is currently known. Unfortunately, most of the camp's service records have been presumably lost to history. If you have or know of any additional historical information about this camp, please contact the Camp Signals Officer. We would very much like to hear from you.

The Ben Harrison Camp No. 356 was organized in Indianapolis, Indiana on June 19, 1884 with 46 members. Most of these original members would have certainly been "Real Sons." The camp was reorganized on March 8, 1897 with 32 members, presumably because the first camp disbanded. Information is sketchy, but the camp was active and continued meeting into the early 1970's. Sometime after this date, the camp was disbanded.

In 1981, the Ben Harrison camp was organized once again and has met continuously since.

All the known past Camp Commanders are listed below. Many of the Camp Commanders from the original camp organization date to 1981 remain unknown.
